

May 27, 2009

Chocolate Cake Communication Design Wins Two Silver Awards for Foundation Reports

Chocolate Cake Communication Design has received two 2009 Communicator Awards. The annual international awards honor the best in communication excellence and are presented and judged by the International Academy of the Visual Arts (IAVA). This year's competition received over 7000 entries from ad agencies and other creative professionals throughout the world.

Chocolate Cake Communication Design was awarded Silver Awards of Distinction for design of the biennial report for The Cooper Foundation and the annual report for The Lincoln Community Foundation. "We are honored to have our work recognized. We take pride in creating quality products for our clients," said Michele Tilley, owner of Chocolate Cake.

Chocolate Cake Communication Design is a graphic design company that works with businesses, helping them communicate their brand to their intended audience. To find out more, please visit www.chocolatecakedesign.com.